

EMPLOI-QUÉBEC

You could obtain additional financial assistance by filing your income tax return

To obtain the solidarity tax credit, the shelter allowance or child assistance payments, you must file your Québec income tax return, even if you have no income to report.

THE SOLIDARITY TAX CREDIT: $950 PER YEAR

Through the solidarity tax credit, you could receive up to $950 per year in addition to your last-resort financial assistance. Depending on your personal circumstances, the amount of the credit could be even higher.

Revenu Québec administers the solidarity tax credit and determines the amount to which you are entitled.

THE SHELTER ALLOWANCE: AN ADDITIONAL $960 PER YEAR

You could also receive up to $960 per year under the Shelter Allowance Program. This program is for households that spend too large a portion of their budget on housing. You may be entitled to the shelter allowance if you have at least one dependent child, or if you or your spouse is at least 51 years of age (the minimum age will be lowered to 50 on October 1, 2015).

Revenu Québec administers the shelter allowance and determines the amount to which you are entitled.

THE CHILD ASSISTANCE PAYMENT

The child assistance payment is paid to eligible families that have dependent children under the age of 18 living with them.

The Régie des rentes du Québec administers the child assistance payment and determines the amount to which you are entitled.
